E Mich 11 Grammar notes

Expressing obligation

- The two main verbs for expressing what has to be done in French are DEVOIR and FALLOIR. There is a big difference in how they are used becase FALLOIR is an impersonal verb. This means it only exists in one form, the third person singular (il faut). DEVOIR can of course be conjugated in all 6 persons.

- Both of these verbs are always followed by an infinitive:

  - je dois PARTIR (I must leave)
  - il faut PARTIR (It is necessary to leave – I must leave)

- Because FALLOIR is an impersonal verb, the context suggests who it is that "must leave" in each case. If we wish to make it clear we can use the indirect object pronouns (me, te, lui, nous. vous, leur)

  - il ME faut partir (it is necessary FOR ME to leave)
  - il LEUR faut partir (it is necessary FOR THEM to leave)

- DEVOIR. This verb also has the simple meaning of "to owe". (Je dois dix euro à mon père et je dois un devoir à mon professeur).

- The more common meaning of DEVOIR is to express OBLIGATION and COMPULSION and also STRONG PROBABILITY. FALLOIR can be used in a similar way, but cannot express probability

I am due to/ I must/ I have to	je dois	PRESENT	il (me) faut
I will have to	je devrai	FUTURE	il (me) faudra
I was due/meant to	je devais	IMPERFECT	**–
I used to have to	je devais	IMPERFECT	il (me) fallait
I ought to / I should	je devrais	CONDITIONAL	il (me) faudrait
I had to (and did)	j'ai dû	PERFECT	il (m')a fallu
I must have (eg forgotten) = probability	j'ai dû	PERFECT	**-

- *An advanced refinement for those who can take it: when expressing probability, the tense of DEVOIR should be the same as if the "probable" fact were in fact a "certainty". Devoir is always followed by an infinitive:

  - J'ai oublié ma clé (FACT) – J'ai dû OUBLIER ma clé (PROBABILITY)
  - Elle avait 25 ans (FACT) – Elle devait AVOIR 25 ans (PROBABILITY)
