F Lent 5 Grammar notes

More on negative phrases

- We have already seen that French uses two words which go around the conjugated verb that you wish to make negative. The first word is always "ne" and the second word is usually one of the following:

  - NE + pas[1]/plus[2]/jamais[3]/rien[4]/personne[5]/nulle part[6]/que[7]
    not[1]/no longer[2]/never[3]/nothing[4]/nobody[5]/nowhere[6]/only[7]

- We also saw in Chapter 7 that in the perfect tense, three of the above particles came after the past participle rather than the conjugated verb:

  - Elle n'a vu personne. Il n'est allé nulle part. On n'a vu que Pierre.

- Here are two other negative expressions that, like ne…que, are placed where they are needed, rather than in a set place:

  - ne + aucun(e) = not a single
  - ne + ni…ni =neither…nor

- In the present tense, the position of the second particle is often obvious, but in the perfect tense, the positioning depends on the meaning of the sentence.

  - Je n'ai aucun ami. Nous n'avons vu que des girafes.
  - Nous n'avons vu des girafes que dans le parc.
  - Nous n'avons vu des girafes dans le parc qu'une seule fois.
  - Nous n'avons vu ni girafes ni éléphants.

- Remember:
  - AUCUN – has to agree with what it negates and can only be used in front of nouns that could be counted, ie not "~~aucun argent~~" or "~~aucun lait~~", but "aucun livre" and "aucune table".

- "TO BE OR NOT TO BE". This is an example of an infinitive and a negative infinitive. To form a negative infinitive in French the two negative particles go TOGETHER BEFORE it: être ou NE PAS être. NULLE PART and PERSONNE are the exceptions, and these go around the infinitive.

  - Je préfère NE RIEN dire. Il a décidé de NE RIEN acheter.
    Elle a promis de N'aller NULLE PART.
    Il a promis de NE frapper PERSONNE

Direct object pronouns: I saw HIM, we ate IT

- The person who "does the action of the verb" is called the subject and you have already learned the subject pronouns in French:
    - je, tu, il/elle, nous, vous, ils/elles.
- There is often an "object" of a verb, too. It doesn't "do" the verb, it "has the action of the verb done to it". Object pronouns are the shorthand way of refering to these, and there is a group of 6, like there are 6 subject pronouns.
    - me[1], te[2], le/la[3], nous[4], vous[5], les[6]
- Unlike in English, in French, Direct Object Pronouns are placed BEFORE THE CONJUGATED VERB. (Except in positive commands to be studied later.)
    - Je t'aime. Nous les regardons, Elles m'ont vu.
- If there is an infinitive after the conjugated verb, the OBJECT PRONOUN will go BEFORE THE INFINITIVE.
    - Je veux te voir. Il a décidé de l'écouter. Nous allons le faire.
- The list of OBJECT PRONOUNS to learn this week are called DIRECT OBJECT PRONOUNS. These are the object pronouns that are used with verbs that do not use a preposition:
    - faire qc/manger qc/ voir qn/ écouter qn/attendre qn.

Another case where avoir past participles agree

- We saw in Lent chapter 3 that after a descriptive "que" clause, that the past participle of an "avoir verb" would agree: les films que j'ai vus.
- Technically, this is called a PDO (preceding direct object). It means that the direct object of the verb "precedes" (comes before) avoir, and this triggers an agreement of the past participle. Below follows a case of PDO that is much easier to spot than the one above.
- A DIRECT OBJECT PRONOUN comes before AVOIR, the participle will agree:
    - je les ai vuS. Nous les avons mangéS. Elle l'a prisE (sthg fem.)
      nous vous avons vuS (2 people) Elle les a frappéS
