The perfect tense (AVOIR verbs)

- This tense is used to describe
  - What you did (I ate)
  - What you have done (I have eaten)

- Only the context tells you whether j'ai mangé means I ate or I have eaten.

- Always use the perfect tense to describe one-off EVENTS in the past

- Although English has a two-word past tense (have eaten) and a one-word past tense (ate), the French perfect tense always has two parts. The first part is called the auxiliary verb, and the second part is called the past participle.

- Most verbs use the present tense of AVOIR as the auxiliary verb. To form regular past participles, you need to change the ending of the infinitive as follows:
  - mangER – mangÉ
  - finIR - finI
  - vendRE - vendU

  nous avons mangé il a fini elles ont vendu

- As usual, though a small group, the most frequently needed past particples are irregular:

avoir	eu	voir	vu
être	été	recevoir	reçu
faire	fait	boire	bu

Regular –RE verbs

- There are very few of these. But as usual:
  - Remove the infinitive ending RE (vend~~re~~, répond~~re~~)
  - You are left with the "stem". Add the personal ending to the stem
    1. je VEND – s

2. tu VEND – s
3. il/elle VEND – nothing
4. nous VEND – ons
5. vous VEND – ez
6. ils VEND – ent

- Some other common verbs which follow this pattern are:

rendre	to give back	répondre	to answer
tondre (la pelouse)	to mow (the lawn)	vendre	to sell
